

Unit-9 Democracy and Human Rights

Writing

- a) Nepal has topsy-turvy political history. Many changes have been observed in different times. Write a short biography of any Nepali freedom fighter incorporating the changes brought under his/her leadership.

Biography of Balbhadra Kunwar

Balbhadra Kunwar was a brave warrior and freedom fighter of Nepal, born in 1789 in the ~~Gorkha~~ Gorkha district. He is famous for his courage and Leadership during the Anglo-Nepalese War (1814-1816), when Nepal faced the British East India Company. Despite being heavily outnumbered, Balbhadra defended the fort of Alapani with great determination and skill, inspiring his soldiers and the people of Nepal.

Under his leadership, the Nepali army showed extraordinary bravery, holding off the British forces for several weeks. Even when the fort was surrounded and water was scarce, Balbhadra and his soldiers continued their fight, refusing to surrender. His valor earned him respect both at home and abroad.

Although he later served in other military campaigns, his stand at Nalapani remains a symbol of Nepalese patriotism and courage. Balbhadra Kunwar is remembered as a national hero whose leadership and fearlessness brought pride to Nepal and inspired future generations to defend their country.

b) Do you think there is racial / caste related discrimination in our country? Discuss with your friend and write a five-minute speech.

Racial and Caste Discrimination in Our country

Respected Teachers, Dear Friends, and everyone present here, good morning. Today, I am going to talk about an important issue: racial and caste-related discrimination in our country. Every person, no matter their caste, race, or background, deserves respect. Respect is the foundation of a fair and peaceful society. Without it, people feel hurt, excluded, and unequal.

Caste and racial discrimination affect many areas of life, including education, jobs, and social interactions. For example, some children are treated unfairly in schools because of their caste, while adults may lose opportunities for work or social recognition. These unfair practices create inequality and prevent our society from developing properly.

Discrimination also harms mental health and self-confidence. People who face it often feel shame, anger, or sadness. When individuals are judged unfairly, they cannot contribute fully to society, which is a loss for ~~everyone~~. everyone.

We must work together to end this problem. Education, awareness programs, and laws can help stop these unfair practices. It is our duty to treat everyone equally, fairly, and with respect, regardless of caste, race, or ethnicity.

In conclusion, caste and racial discrimination still exists, but by raising awareness and practicing equality in daily life, we can build a society based on justice, respect and unity. Thank you.