

Third Term Examination – 2082

Class : XI

Subject: C. English (0031)

Full Marks: 75

Time: 3 hrs.

SET B

Pass Marks: 30

Candidates are required to give their answers in their own words as far as practicable. The figures in the margin indicate full marks.

1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow.

Educating Psyche by Bernie Neville is a book which looks at radical new approaches to learning, describing the effects of emotion, imagination and the unconscious on learning. One theory discussed in the book is that proposed by George Lozanov, which focuses on the power of suggestion.

Lozanov's instructional technique is based on the evidence that the connections made in the brain through unconscious processing (which he calls non-specific mental reactivity) are more durable than those made through conscious processing. Besides the research evidence, we know from our experience that we often remember what we have perceived peripherally, long after we have forgotten what we set out to learn. If we think of a book we studied years ago, we will find it easier to recall peripheral details - the colour, the binding, the typeface, the table at the library where we sat while studying it - than the content on which we were concentrating. Even if these peripheral details are a bit elusive, they come back readily in hypnosis as in psychodrama. The details of the content, on the other hand, seem to have gone forever.

This phenomenon can be partly attributed to the common counterproductive approach to study (making extreme efforts to memorise), but it also simply reflects the way the brain functions. Lozanov therefore made indirect instruction (suggestion) central to his teaching system. Suggestopedia, as he called his method, functions on the principle of desuggestion in which consciousness is shifted away from the curriculum to focus on something peripheral. The curriculum then becomes peripheral and is dealt with by the reserve capacity of the brain.

The suggestopedic approach to foreign language learning provides a good illustration. In its most recent variant (1980), it consists of the reading of vocabulary and text while the class is listening to music. The first session is in two parts. In the first part, the music is classical (Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms) and the teacher reads the text slowly and solemnly, with attention to the dynamics of the music. The students follow the text in their books. This is followed by several minutes of silence. In the second part, they listen to baroque music while the teacher reads the text in a normal speaking voice.

During this time they have their books closed. During the whole of this session, their attention is passive; they listen to the music but make no attempt to learn the material.

Beforehand, the students have been carefully prepared for the language learning experience. Through meeting with the staff and satisfied students they develop the expectation that learning will be easy and pleasant and that they will successfully learn several hundred words of the foreign language during the class. At first, the teacher introduces them to the material to be covered, but does not 'teach' it. Likewise, the students are instructed not to try to learn it during this introduction.

After some hours, there is a follow-up class at which the students are stimulated to recall the material presented. Once again, the approach is indirect. The students do not try to remember the vocabulary, but focus on using the language to communicate (e.g. through games or improvised dramatisations). Such methods are not unusual in language teaching. What is distinctive in the suggestopedic method is that they are devoted entirely to assisting recall. The 'learning' of the material is assumed to be automatic and effortless as it involves unconscious processing. The teacher's task is to assist the students to apply what they have learned paraconsciously, and in doing so to make it easily accessible to consciousness. Another difference from conventional teaching is the evidence that students can regularly learn 1000 new words of a foreign language during a suggestopedic session, as well as grammar and idiom.

A. Mark the statements True, False, or Not Given. [5×1=5]

TRUE If the statement agrees with the information given in the text.
FALSE If the statement contradicts the information given in the text.
NOT GIVEN If there is no information in the text.

- a. Prior to the suggestopedia class, students are made aware that the language experience will be demanding.
- b. In the follow-up class, the teaching activities are similar to those used in conventional classes.
- c. As an indirect benefit, students notice improvements in their memory.
- d. Teachers say they prefer suggestopedia to traditional approaches to language teaching.
- e. Students in a suggestopedia class retain more new vocabulary than those in ordinary classes.

B. Complete the following sentences using NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS from the text for each answer. [5×1=5]

- a. The theory propounded by George Lozanov highlights the.....
- b. We frequently recall what we have.....
- c. Part of the phenomenon in suggestopedia is caused by the .....used in studying.
- d. ....is played in the second part of the session.

- e. The teacher is responsible to ..... to execute the things they have learnt paraconsciously.

C. Give short answers to the following questions in ONE SENTENCE each. [5×1=5]

- a. What information is crucial about the book Educating Psyche by Bernie Neville?
- b. How does Lozanov contrast unconscious learning with conscious learning?
- c. What is the main principle behind the theory of suggestopedia?
- d. What happens in the first part of the suggestopedic session?
- e. Why is learning assumed to be automatic in Suggestopedia?

2. Write short answers to the following questions in about 75 words each. [5×2=10]

- a. What motivated and encouraged the child to continue on his journey? (The Wish)
- b. Why does Steve Jobs consider death the greatest invention of life? (How to Live Before You Die)
- c. Who is the speaker of the poem 'who are you, little i'? Why do you think he/she recalls the November sunset?
- d. According to the writer, what are the four general human needs? (What I Require from Life)
- e. How does the story satirize unfair legal system in human society? (God Sees the Truth but Waits)

3. Write long answers to the following questions in about 150 words each. [2×5 = 10]

- a. Why do Dona Laura and Don Gonzalo create fictitious stories about themselves? Elucidate on the basis of the textual evidence. (A Sunny Morning)
- b. Explain the following lines with reference to the context:
- Till a'the seas gang dry, my dear,
And the rocks melt wi'the sun!
And I will love thee still, my dear,
While the sands o'life shall run.

(A Red, Red Rose)

4. Develop a story from the following clues and give a suitable title: [7]

A boy walking through a forest – finds a wallet full of money – thinks of keeping it – sees an old man searching anxiously – boy returns wallet – rewarded for honesty – happiness – moral.

5. Your best friend has been feeling overwhelmed with school lately and has started skipping soccer practice. Write an email to check in on them, offering a specific way that can help lighten his/her load this week. Make sure your tone is natural and casual. [8]

6. The municipality of your town has launched a Clean City Campaign. As the Public Relations Officer, prepare a press release informing the public about the campaign's goals, activities, and public participation. [10]

7. Do as directed and rewrite the sentences. [10×1 = 10]

- The Nepalese guy is very handsome. (Identify the word class of the underlined word.)
- Students are acquainted ..... (with/to/in/for) the college codes and conducts. (Choose the correct preposition.)
- The pair of shoes..... (be) very expensive. (Complete the sentence using the correct present form of the verb in the brackets.)
- She.....pass the exam because she is really studious. (Use 'will' or 'am going to'.)
- Anjana grew very tall and good looking. (Identify whether the verb in this sentence is transitive, intransitive, or linking.)
- You.....enter into the classroom on time. (Complete the sentence using 'should' or 'had better'.)
- It was raining heavily. She didn't carry an umbrella. (Combine these sentences using 'in spite of' or 'despite'.)
- Amelia speaks English and Chinese fluently. She is from Shanghai. (Join these sentences using a relative clause.)
- You live in a crowded city. (Express a wish in the given situation.)
- They ..... (visit) Khaptad many times since their childhood. (Use the correct tense of the verb in the brackets.)

8. Choose and copy the correct option. [5×1 = 5]

- The correct set of guide words for the headword 'sympathy' is:
  - symphony – symptom
  - symbol – symbiosis
  - symmetry – symphonious
  - syntax – system
- The plural form of the noun 'analysis' is:
  - analyses
  - analyes
  - analyze
  - analyses
- Find the word with /f/ sound:
  - sip
  - books
  - cement
  - mush
- My car broke down on the way to school. The phrasal verb in this sentence means:
  - stopped functioning
  - got broken
  - had an accident
  - lost the wheels
- The word 'minatory' means:
  - friendly and helpful
  - conveying a threat
  - performing a task
  - compulsory

☞ - The End - ☞